Capital Boy Always Successful Against St. Louis. Anxious to Work.

NO CHANCE FOR FALKY

Cleveland Refuses to Let Tall Boy Out-Mitchell a Good Flinger.

Special to The Washington HernM.

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 27.—Joe Engel, the kid pitcher who has established quite a record by winning four games from the St. Louis Hrowns this season, will go arainst the Stoyall clan in the final contest of the series here tomorrow afternoon, but if the Climbers do not hit Baumgardner, who seems to be Stovall's choice, any harder than they did Michell today, there is alim show for a victory.

About all the Washington players dis-cussed while lounging around the folbing of the Pianters' Hotel here tonight was the flinging of Roy Mitchell. "Ho must be a great pitcher," chirped Eddie Foster, "I didn't get a hit off him."

The same goes for me, saded Gidde Milan.
Then Tom Hughes, the wise old Øwt, spoke up. This Mitchell is the best man Stovall has on his staff, don't make any mistake about that. Mitchell had you fellows double crossed all the time. He simply outgreesed you, and a twifer who can do that is no slouch. That's the answer in a nutshell. The Climbers did not know what was coming until the ball was in the catcher's hands, and then it was too late.

and then it was too late.

The decision by Umpire Bill Dineen in the lireways third inning, when two runs were second, caught the Nationals off their guard. So apparent to Gandii was the fact that Austin was out that he stated to roll the hall to the center of the diamond and also to pull off his glove. Catcher Henry, too, started to walk away from behind the plate. Agnew, who was on third, and Shotten, at second, started for the plate the minute the ball left Austins bat; consequently both were able to score before the astonished Gandii and more-surprised Henry could get busy. After the game Austin himself admitted to the Washington players that McBride's throw had him beaten by a step.

Chick Gandii and Danny Moeller have both made solemn yows not to undergo the operation of shaving until one or the other has obtained three hits during a single ball game. Germany Schaefer says that when the Nationals return home Moeller will be as bewhiskered as Rip Van Winkle.

Rip Van Winkle.

According to Manager Griffith, the Browns made a mistake by letting Short-stop Lavan go to the Athletics at the waiver price. Griff believes that with a little more experience Lavan will hit, and adds that as a fielder he is good cought to play on any major league team in the country.
